FROM THE DESK OF THE EDITOR IN CHIEF...

Dear South Carolina Law Review Alumni:

On behalf of Volume 67, I am pleased to send you the South Carolina Law Review's fall 2015 newsletter. This newsletter will highlight some of the Law Review's accomplishments and providing information about the Volume 67 Symposium and other events we have planned.

The Editorial Board for Volume 67 began work almost immediately in February to get a jumpstart on article selection. The Article Selection Committee was comprised of six student members—Caroline Gimenez, Jon LeCompte, Shanon Green, Chase Keibler, Keegan Miller and myself. The Article Selection Committee worked into July to find a diverse compilation of articles covering salient issues of the day. RI Smith, Jennie Rischbieter, and journal members also compiled a list of topics from which our 2L staff members have been drafting their notes to be considered for publication in our annual Survey of South Carolina Law.

Book 2 of Volume 67 will feature the white papers from the ABA Commission on the Future of Legal Services. USC Law's own Professor Elizabeth Chambliss is a member of the commission and chairs its "data" group. The white papers contain sixteen shorter articles, each detailing an aspect of the delivery of legal services. The Commission will release their findings in March. The authors are from schools all over the country. We are excited to have the opportunity expand upon the prestige and reputation of the South Carolina Law Review on such a national scale.

This summer, the Law Review administered the Joint Journal Writing Competition, and we appreciate the work done by our Associate Editors-in-Chiefs, Mary Cothonneau Eldridge and Emily Dobson, in managing the competition. At the conclusion of the competition, we were pleased to select twenty-nine new members.

The Law Review welcomed Volume 67's new editorial staff during our August orientation, at which we were honored to hear from distinguished alumni. The Honorable Joseph F. Anderson, Jr. and Dean Robert Wilcox delivered insightful remarks about their time on Law Review and emphasized the importance of our journal. Throughout the fall semester, both our second and third year members have worked very hard on behalf of the Law Review, but have also enjoyed building camaraderie between the classes. Members participated in the Women in Law Halloween Carnival and other Pro Bono events. Thank you to Mary Cothonneau Eldridge for her help in planning the Law Review's table at the carnival. The Law Review also participated in the Annual Hunger is NOT a Crock (Pot) event, and many thanks to Keegan Miller and Hilary Martin for preparing our entries. In November, we held a Wrap Party at Thirsty Fellow, where several members were honored for their contributions to the Law Review.

We hope that you will plan to attend the Volume 67 Symposium on February 4 and 5. This year's Topic is Cyber Attacks and Civil Liability. Thanks to our Symposium Editors Wes Moran and Ali Williams for all they have done to plan this event. Following the Symposium on Friday, February 5, we will be hosting an alumni event. All of our members enjoyed meeting alumni last year and hearing about their experiences on the Law Review. You will be receiving more information about these events after the first of the year, and we hope you will attend.

If you have any questions, please contact me by telephone at (864) 933-6877 or by email at eic@sclawreview.org. Thank you so much for your interest and support.

Sincerely,

VOLUME 67 SYMPOSIUM:
*Cyber Attacks and Civil Liability

Attacks on companies' private data servers are appearing in the news more frequently. Hackers can reach private banking information, computer systems on vehicles, and even an individual's pacemaker. These issues and the surrounding law will be discussed at our upcoming symposium.

The South Carolina Law Review is hosting a Symposium in 2016 titled Cyber Attacks and Civil Liability. The event will begin at 6:00 pm on Thursday, February 4th, with the keynote address. On Friday, February 5th, there will be three panel discussions. The first will explain the science behind cyber attacks and cyber security. This panel will feature not only lawyers, but people from the tech field. We hope that by including panelists from people outside the legal discipline, we can have a more complete discussion. The second panel will focus on the current law surrounding cyber attacks and where this law seems to be evolving towards. The third panel will focus on practitioner issues involving cyber attacks. These talks will be a great platform for the diverse group of panelists to provide a wide range of perspectives on these issues. We are extremely excited about this event as it promises to offer timely discussions of many issues that are commonly associated with cyber attacks and improving cyber security. Finally, the Symposium will offer attendees six hours of CLE credit.

For more information about Volume 67's Symposium, as well as sponsorship opportunities, please feel free to contact our Symposium Editors, Wes Moran and Ali Williams, at symposium@sclawreview.org.
